WELCOME

Dear guests, friends and members of our Society,

Tonight we celebrate a century of song, dance, friendship and togetherness. Since 1926, generations of members of the Nikola Tesla Cultural and Artistic Society have preserved their heritage and passed it on to new generations.

This concert is dedicated to those who built the Society, those who sustain it today, and the youngest generations who will carry its story forward.

Thank you for sharing this milestone with us.

A CENTURY OF TRADITION

The story of the Nikola Tesla Cultural and Artistic Society of Belgrade Public Transport began in 1926, when workers of the Belgrade Tramway and Lighting Administration founded a choral society. They were united by their love of music and the wish to build something enduring.

That year, the founders wrote to Nikola Tesla in America, asking permission to name the Society after him. According to the Society's published history, Tesla agreed and sent a design for its emblem — a lyre crossed by lightning. In 1936, for the tenth anniversary, he sent a ceremonial flag and staff, treasured and preserved to this day.

Over the decades, generations of dancers, singers and musicians joined the Society and earned numerous honours. In 1946, it was named the best in Belgrade. Today, on its centenary, children, young performers and veterans continue preserving cultural heritage and passing it to future generations.

THE ENERGY THAT ENDURES

The concert unfolds as one continuous stage narrative, without a traditional host or an intermission. A ceremonial toast, Tesla's monologues, music, dance and light connect the past, present and future.

Belgrade's tramways and the motif of light evoke the Society's origins. The circle dance symbolizes unity, while the meeting of generations reminds us that tradition lives only when it is shared and passed on.
